Prime Value Asset Management has appointed former Standard & Poor's James Gunn as a new senior investment analyst.

Gunn's role will be to provide bottom-up research including financial analysis, modelling of companies, company and industry report writing.

Gunn was previously Standard & Poor's associate director and prior to that, a financial analyst with Lincoln Indicators.

Prime Value director Yak Yong Quek said Gunn's appointment will strengthen the investment team.

"James is someone we have had an eye on for a long time. He has an exceptional background and we believe his market insights will be valuable. We are excited to have him on board," Quek said.

James Gunn has replaced Fiona Clark, the previous senior investment analyst.
