Market review

Global equity markets rallied in November, led by the U.S. (in local currency terms), with Australia participating well in the bounce. Lower inflation expectations with growing optimism that central banks may have seen peak interest rates. All three major U.S. stock indices ended November at least 8% higher, recovering from a three-month losing streak. The tech-heavy Nasdaq Composite Index led the way, ending the month up 10.7%. The S&P 500 Index gained 8.9% in November.

After peaking around 5% in mid-October, the US 10-year bond yield declined 54 bps drop in November. The rapid decline appears to be driven by softer economic data, renewed signs of slowing inflation, and some signs the US Federal Reserve may not just be on pause, but may cut interest rates in 2024. Australia's bond yields fell 52bps in November, similar to the drop in the US as the hawkish shift in rate expectations over recent months was partly reversed. Unlike developed world peers that are on hold, the RBA raised interest rates again in November.

Commodity prices were mixed in November. The iron ore price rose 7.2% in November to US$132.05/t, driven by rumours of property stimulus in China and a restocking of iron ore. In contrast to other base metals, copper rose 4.5% to US$3.80/lb amid protests in Panama. The decrease in yields and a lower US Dollar saw gold rise 2.6% to US$2,036/oz; the first-time gold has ended a month above US$2,000/oz.

The ASX300 Accumulation Index gained 5.1% in November. The breadth of sector and stock outperformance was broad-based, with sectors that had lagged in 2023 posting the largest uplift in returns. Health Care and Real Estate were the best-performing sectors for the month, up +11.7% and 10.8%, respectively; on the other hand, further oil price retracement saw the Energy sector underperform. Materials added the most value to the ASX300 Index, adding +147bps, followed by Real Estate (+118bps), Health Care (+114bps) and Discretionary (+105bps). Small Caps also rebounded strongly in November, up +7.0%, outperforming Large and- Mid Caps stocks

This graph shows how $100,000 invested at the Fund's inception has increased to $743,700 (net of fees excluding performance fees). This compares very favourably with the return of the market, where a $100,000 investment would have increased to $532,000 over the same period. The returns exclude the benefits of imputation credits.

Performance figures have been calculated in accordance with the Financial Services Council (FSC) standards. No allowance has been made for taxation. Performance assumes the reinvestment of income distributions. Past performance is not necessarily an indicator of future performance.

Fund review & strategy

Fund returned 4.1% for the month of November, a pleasing turnaround from the previous month's negative return. On a relative basis, Fund under-performed its market benchmark as this Fund typically do not invest in the low dividend-paying healthcare and technology sectors; both were strong performers for the month. The Energy sector retracted as WTI declined some 6%. Contributors for the month were CBA (+8.4%), Macquarie Group (MQG +5.0%) and BHP (+4%). Detractors were the energy names including Woodside (WDS -9.5%) and Santos (STO -9.9%). S32 also went backwards (-7.2%) on the back of lower commodity prices.

Three major banks reported during the month. As expected, the bank chiefs sang in unison - ongoing cost pressure (wages, regulatory, cyber, Al etc), competitive pressures on net Interest margin (pressure from both the lending & funding book). A broker report showed the sector ROE decline over the past decade - from 15% in 2013 to around 12% now, net interest margin in the same downward trend, whereas the cost to income ratio went up from 43% to 46%. In short, the investment arithmetic is moving in the wrong direction! We expect the bank earnings growth to be rather lacklustre but not disastrous short term (assume no material deterioration in asset quality). Banks will work hard to maintain their dividends as we saw what happened with the ANZ decision in this reporting round (additional dividend to compensate the shortage in franking). The sector dividend yield is likely to remain stable for now and competitive in the face of higher term deposit rate. We need to monitor the sustainability of the current high payout ratio.

We continue to hold a balanced portfolio, seeking sustainable dividends plus medium-term growth opportunities.
